

Abstract

A device (7) for measuring the viscosity and/or the density of a fluid (5) using a resonator capable of mechanical vibrations is proposed, the resonator being provided capable of being brought into contact with the fluid (5); an oscillator circuit (2) being provided, the oscillator circuit (2) has a first feedback network (K_1) and a second feedback network (K_2).

wherein